A System of School Training for Horses. By E. L.

ANDERSON, Author of 'How to Ride and School a Horse.'

'He is well worthy of a hearing.'—BELL'S LIFE.

'Mr. Anderson is without doubt a thorough horseman.'—THE FIELD.

'It should be a good investment to all lovers of horses.'—THE FARMER.

'There is no reason why the careful reader should not be able, by the help of this little book, to train as well as ride his horses.'—LAND AND WATER.

Crown 8vo. Illustrated, 6s.

The Management and Treatment of the Horse in the STABLE, FIELD, AND ON THE ROAD. By WILLIAM PROCTOR (Stud Groom). Second Edition, revised and enlarged.

'There are few who are interested in horses will fail to profit by one portion or another of this useful work.'—SCOTSMAN.

'We cannot do better than wish that Mr. Proctor's book may find its way into the hands of all those concerned in the management of the most useful quadruped we possess.'—ENGLAND.

'There is a fund of sound common-sense views in this work which will be interesting to many owners.'—FIELD.

'Coming from a practical hand the work should recommend itself to the public.'—SPORTSMAN.

THE FAMILY REGISTER.

A Key to such Official Entries of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, at the Registrar-General's Office, as may refer to any particular Family, and for the Preservation of Genealogical Data essential to Evidence of Pedigrees.

WITH EXPLANATORY INTRODUCTION.

EDITED BY

ALFRED GEORGE TAUNTON.

---

"THE FAMILY REGISTER" is published to afford an easy method of fulfilling the duty, which every man owes to himself and to his children, of preserving his pedigree.

Although it cannot be denied that, in cases where past generations have neglected to record their ancestral history, the process of searching for the necessary materials for it would involve more time and patience as well as expense, than the majority of Englishmen would be disposed to afford, this objection should not be put forward as an excuse for continuing the neglect, but should rather induce all to make some effort to preserve the genealogical facts of which they may have personal knowledge, or which they could obtain from elder relatives, or even from old friends of deceased members of their family. In most cases such information would only reach back to the third generation, but even this valuable contribution will be lost to descendants unless it is recorded in writing.

While it may be allowed that the public records of the Registrar-General are a more authoritative source of evidence in matters of pedigree, it should be borne in mind that unless families possess means of identifying their ancestors with the persons of their surname whose births, marriages, and deaths may be found in the public registers, it will be very difficult a few generations hence to decide who, out of a number of Charles Robinsons, for instance, registered in any one year, was the great-grandfather of a particular family of that name.

It may therefore be asserted that while "THE FAMILY REGISTER" would become a valued memorial in the family, it would always serve as a key to the corresponding entries at Somerset House.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"A most ingenious, simple, and invaluable register for all who wish to preserve their pedigree, or even to possess it in a form appealing to common intelligence."—Sunday Times.

"There can be no doubt that every family should possess some such record as this, which is frequently required in a court of law; and Mr. Taunton may be congratulated on having produced a book which makes the task of compilation an easy one."—Antiquary.

"We have no hesitation in saying that 'The Family Register' supplies a great and urgent want, and should be found in every well-regulated household. It will certainly supersede the Family Bible as a register of family memorials."—Antiquarian Magazine.

"Messrs. W. H. Allen have just issued a volume described as 'The Family Register,' being a key to such official entries of births, marriages, and deaths, at the Registrar-General's Office, as may refer to any particular family, and for the preservation of genealogical data essential to evidence of pedigree. The work is edited by Mr. Alfred G. Taunton, of the India Office, who furnishes a lucid explanatory Introduction. This new idea is intended to supersede the Family Bible as a register for these data. The handsomely bound folio volume consists of an ample supply of forms to be filled in by heads of families for the time being, so that these private registers may ultimately become of great value in proving pedigrees in courts of law in default of other evidence. The folded form mounted upon linen for the tabulation of a pedigree, will also be found a useful addition."—Academy.
